Rooted in hands on community development experience, we innovate and respond to what change-makers need. Our books range from manuals to monographs; online, in print and Open Access formats.

They address today's pressing global challenges including agriculture and food, climate resilience, energy, water, sanitation and hygiene, social development, and construction and housing.

Our website platform, launched in 2020, is optimised for institutional use, as well as for individual customers worldwide.

It houses our entire collection of online resources (ebooks, journal articles and other resources), and showcases our complete catalogue of print books – all available to buy or download from this easy to navigate ecommerce platform.

Do you have an idea for a research article or book that will benefit development practice?

Are you a practitioner whose paper or book can inform research and policy?

Is your knowledge waiting to make a positive difference to communities around the world?

If so, we would love to hear from you! Contact Jutta Mackwell, Content Commissioning Coordinator to discuss further:
